

World Gaming - the next Big thing in Online Competition

GameGirl.com News April 10, 2009 8:10 AM Ladyluck

Do you like competing? Do you like winning money? Then check out the arena for online gaming. The site is called WorldGaming and it has daily tournaments, huge cash jackpots, as well as a variety of sign-up bonuses. Then this is the site for you.

For the next 30 days, World Gaming is undergoing their Launch Party. During this time, every new registrant will receive a 25% deposit bonus, and every 100th registrant will receive $50 deposit bonus into their world gaming account. This account will be used for your online tournaments and one on one challenges at World Gaming. However, once registrants hit 10,000, say bye bye to the sign-up bonuses.

But that's not all. The 10,000 registrant will also receive the Grand Prize. The Grand Prize contains a choice of either a PS3 or an Xbox360. Along with a $250 Gift Certificate to GameStop and $100 deposit bonus into their World Gaming Account.

The whole basis of World Gaming is to give gamers the chance to put their skills on display for everyone to see. It is a chance for them to make money doing what they love. The site hosts multiple genres, platforms, as well as offers quick and easy challenge processes. You also get automated results verifications, player tracking (as well as skill tracking), and not to mention game lobbies to chat with other gamers for easy matchmaking.

There are some restriction however, as the following states are ineligible to place cash deposits or to compete online: Arizona, Arkansas, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Illinois, Iowa, Louisiana, Maryland, Montana, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee and Vermont.

For more information, check out:

www.worldgaming.com